SECURING A BETTER PEACE OF MIND WITH ADEMCO'S NEW ENVIRONMENTALLY FRIENDLY DIGITAL LOCKING SOLUTION

Say goodbye to the worry, inconvenience and costliness of having to change all your locks every time you lose your keys or if there is a change in the users, be it a flat mate, domestic help or an employee. With Ademco's new innovative digital locking technology iLoq, specific keys can be deactivated to render them useless, without any additional cost or inconvenience to other key holders.

iLoq is the world's first, environmentally friendly technology security solution that totally does away with the need for batteries or wiring. At the heart of its "green" digital based technology system is the unique self-powered electromechanical lock cylinder that uses a secure identification process to verify the key's access rights. All it takes is the simple action of pushing the key into the lock to generate the tiny amount of electricity needed by the key and the lock to operate.

As different access rights data can be encrypted with an iLoq programming device either over the internet or through a mobile phone, there is no compromise on security as the lock only accepts keys with the required rights to entry so there is no risk of the keys being copied. The system also offers a complete range of lock versions: cylinders of doors, lockers and cabinets, padlocks, and electronic key-reader modules for controlling elevators, barriers and alarm systems, all of which can be programmed into one key according to the individual's access rights, for added convenience.

Easy to install and maintain, in addition to reducing the environmental impact of using disposable batteries, iLoq also cuts down on the laborious and costly maintenance of extensive mechanical lock systems, commonly found in commercial and residential premises.
